WILDFLOWER SEEDS SOWN IN MAHNCKE PARK

Neighborhood residents sowed wildflower seeds in Mahncke Park on Sunday, December 7. The volunteer effort was twofold – first, planting wildflower seeds in the park is an annual tradition begun in 1992 as a living memorial to deceased neighbors and family members. Also, sowing wildflower seeds helps restore native wildflowers, which are an important food source for pollinators. Seeds included Bluebonnet, Purple Prairie Clover, Lanceleaf Coreopsis, Lemon Mint, Huisache Daisy, and Black-Eyed Susan.

The following neighbors volunteered to sow seeds:

Derek Elliott, Davis Court,
Ric Minks, Parland Place,
Sandy Burge, Ira Avenue,
George Grimes, Parland Place,
Bruce Martin, Pershing Avenue,
Carlynn Ricks, Pershing Avenue,
John Gambuzza, Funston Place,
Ruben Lopez, Queen Anne Court,
Charlotte Anne Lucas, Funston Place,
Rachel & Hadrian Sorenson, Queen Anne Court,
Paul Vaughn & Ruth Rodriguez, Thorman Place.

Parks Department staff members Andre Dyer and Nicole McLeod loaned rakes (including children's size) in support of the effort, and Senior Horticulturalist Robert Kwiatkowski provided wildflower seeds.

Sincere thanks to all neighborhood volunteers and to the Parks Dept. staff who helped make this year's project successful. NOTE: 10 days after seed planting, it rained ½".

YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD IS CHANGING, PART 1

Taco Cabana at 2908 Broadway closed last month and this site has ceased operations. A notice to Texas Taco Cabana LP posted on the property stated, in part: "You are delinquent on rent and are hereby locked out of the premises." The local daily newspaper reported on December 26 the property had recently sold to the children's museum.

MEETING RE: BOTANICAL GARDEN SPECIAL EVENTS

Representatives of the Mahncke Park Neighborhood Association (MPNA) met December 19 with SA Botanical Garden (SABG) management and Public Works Dept. staff members in a meeting facilitated by City Council District 2. The meeting addressed several issues such as adding licensed peace officers and signage to reduce traffic congestion and parking on residential streets. Subsequent to the meeting, the SABG provided weekly updates regarding efforts to alleviate problems for the neighborhood during peak operating hours, special events, and recent holiday light show programming. The MPNA and SABG have agreed to begin meeting in February to discuss a proactive approach to managing holiday and special events in 2026.

YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD IS CHANGING, PART 2

Adair Kitchen, a Houston-based food service firm with two locations in Harris County, is continuing renovation on the building at 4108 Broadway, which was a Jim's Restaurant for over 50 years until closing in 2024. Per a filing with the State of Texas, Adair Kitchen represented renovation costs will be $470,000.00. Adair Kitchen is reported to serve "homestyle comfort food all day long."

Adair Kitchen posted the following on October 2 to their Facebook page:

"The final pieces are falling into place, and our San Antonio location is taking shape day by day. From beams and tiles to the decorations that make it feel like home, we can already picture the coffee brewing and the tables filling up. It won't be long now, and we can't wait to share the finished space with you. Stay tuned, San Antonio, the doors will be opening before you know it."

In December, the message board outside Adair Kitchen at 4108 Broadway read:

"Guys. . .We mean it this time. . .Won't be long!"

The march starting point will be 3501 Martin Luther King Drive, and the ending point will be Pittman-Sullivan Park, 1101 Iowa Street. The City of San Antonio sponsors the march and has done so since 1987. The annual march is reported to be among the largest MLK marches in the country.

NEIGHBORHOOD HOLIDAY LIGHTS FANTASTIC

Our neighborhood is the site of several holiday light displays each December - and increasingly November, too. Twinkling lights across the Incarnate Word University campus create a pleasant nighttime view from Broadway and Hildebrand. Also, seasonal lights glow from outdoor displays at the SA Country Club and the skyscraper at the SE corner of Hildebrand and Broadway. However, the spirit of colorful incandescent and light emitting diode bulbs could be found throughout the residential core of Mahncke Park last month. In particular, the 200, 300, and 400 blocks of Elmhurst featured abundant electrical icicles at multiple homes, as well as what could best be described as multi-colored tornadoes in one front yard. The 400 block of Natalen included less exuberant displays but with a more consistent theme of colored lights outlining doorframes, windows and rooflines. Quite lovely. On Thorman Place, a corner property decorated trunks of two oak trees with thickly wrapped strands of colored lights, calling to mind a pair of exuberant Christmas socks.

But the unofficial, neighborhood holiday light display champion for 2025 was most certainly 500 Queen Anne Court, at the SE corner of N. New Braunfels. A mash-up of white and colored lights defined both front and side yard fences. Two front yard trees had trunks and branches thoroughly wrapped in white lights, and the home's roofline was defined by strands of colored lights. But wait, there's more. . . an archway of colored lights welcomed visitors through the front gate where a white reindeer/unicorn crossbreed covered in strands of lights welcomed visitors. Two Christmas trees made of green lights with yellow stars flanked the front door – above which were a bundle of red lights. Window frames were outlined in white lights, and the front of the house was awash in a green glow reminiscent of Kryptonite. Finally, perched above it all was a full-size peacock constructed of blue and green lights and regally glimmering among a holiday light display that won't soon be forgotten. Thank you, 500 Queen Anne Court, you are the best!
